32.5% Tax Assessment Jump

PUSD Offers A Contract

The proposed Master Certified Employment Agreement between the Placentia Unified School District and the approximately 690 teachers represented by the Placentia Unified Education Association (PUEA) was released Wednesday by district trustees.

With the release of the 30-page document, negotiators for the teachers and the district, which represents management and trustees, will begin the collective bargaining process which became law July 1.

Teachers presented their proposal in a 124-page document April 26, asking for an almost 14 per cent salary increase, additional days of paid leave, full dental and orthodonture plan for teachers and dependents, a seven-hour work day (including lunch and preparation time) and an agency shop in which all teachers must join PUEA or pay a service fee to the association or to a charitable organization.

"This Agreement is intended as a complete response to the requirements of the Education Code and Government Code and, as such, shall constitute the point of departure for negotiations with the Placentia Unified Education Association," trustees stated in a position paper.

"This proposal is supported by the terms and intent of existing board policies and procedures and, therefore, continues and extends the existing basis for excellent academic and athletic achievement for the children of Placentia Unified School District."

Many items in the PUEA proposal, such as curriculum and staffing, are considered to be outside the scope of bargaining prescribed by the law, according to Jerry Dorn, the district's chief negotiator.

However, trustees said, "It is the intention of the District to maintain the excellent interface that we have

Plight Lamented

The $3.3 million budget for the Yorba Linda School District now being studied by the Board of Trustees was amended last week to include an additional $16,495 which became available through federal government CETA funding. This will allow the employment of two maintenance men through January 31, 1977.

The action gave District Superintendent Sterling Fox the opportunity to decry the district's financial position.

Fox pointed out that SB 90 funding is not sufficient to allow the district to have a basic program as the law intended.

The superintendent detailed deficiencies the district faces in the 1976-77 fiscal year with available funds.

He said class sizes will be increased by two students each, no seventh period at the junior high, cleaning will be done every other day ("somewhere down the road we are going to pay for this"), no after school athletics, little or no in-service training ("teachers will be able to attend very few conferences"), lack of library books and supplemental text books and no field trips for students.

Expanding on the immediate picture Fox said that the district's financial plight dates back to 1969. Since then there has been:

No school nurse ("we have no K-8 health program"), no transportation above state reimbursable limits, little or no capital outlay ("the $2 per pupil allowed for this should be $20"), lack of funds for repair and replacement of equipment ("how long can we keep patching and doing without?"), loss of two reading specialists and loss of teacher aides.

Fox questioned how long the district can be "timid" and continue to function under the present circumstances.

Water Records Set...

Blistering late June temperatures sent water consumption in the Yorba Linda County Water District soaring to an all-time high, general manager Ralph Shook reported.

A record day for the year was set at 11.2 million gallons on Wednesday, June 23 only to be shattered the following day.

The single-day record high in the district's history was reached on June 24, Shook said, when the district's 8,500 customers, consumed 14.8 million gallons of water.

That was followed by 12.5 million gallons on June 25, 12.7 million gallons on June 26, 14.8 million gallons on June 27, and 14.3 million gallons on Monday, June 28.

Since June 23, the first day that water consumption began to zoom during the heat wave, district customers have used a total of 80.3 million gallons, a record for any six day period in the district's history.

"I've never seen anything like this in my 21 years with the district," Shook said.

"This taxed the District's pumping capacity. The flow of Colorado River water out of the Diemer Plant is also running to near full capacity."

In fact, Shook said, the combined well field and Diemer Plant production into the district's water system has been unable to keep pace with the peak hour demand and several million gallons of water had to be drawn from the district's three storage reservoirs to supply the peak hour demands.

"Still, we've been able to satisfactorily serve our customers," he said.

...Same for Electricity

Continuing high temperatures broke all-time records in electric system peak demand for the second time in five days, Southern California Edison Company reported Monday, June 28.

At 3 p.m. on that date Edison system demand of its customers was recorded at 11,081,000 kilowatts. The figure surpassed June 24's recorded 10,711,000 kilowatts which had been the highest since June of 1973.

A Southern California Edison spokesman said the continuing 100 degree-plus weather and the resulting heavy use of air conditioners was the cause of the high electric demand.

"Our customers have been cooperating in conservation, but when the temperature hits 100 degrees," Myers said, "those air conditioners are on full blast and we have to supply the power to serve them."

He urged residential and commercial customers to shift unnecessary operation of electric appliances to early morning or late evening hours to help level out the peak demand in the afternoon.

He added that operation of appliances during off-hours will also keep homes cooler and allow air conditioning systems to operate more efficiently.

Myers explained that the heat storm caused local neighborhood problems in isolated areas resulting from overloaded transformers which directly serve homes.

He requested customers to immediately report any electrical problems. If Edison phone lines are busy on the first try, customers are asked to call again after a brief interval.

The Yorba Linda City Council may want to reconsider its negative vote on instituting a property tax rate for the new fiscal year but then again they would probably get much more flak from residents if they reversed their stand.

The reason for the tax rate, recommended for $1 per $100 of assessed valuation, would be the property assessment increase announced late last week by County Assessor Bradley Jacobs.

Yorba Linda's assessment increase is 32.5% bringing valuations up to a total of $88,000,000, an increase of $21.73 million. This city was second only to Villa Park whose increased valuation was 34 per cent. The County average increase was 18.7%.

The money the city would realize if they had a tax rate would be considerable with the newest assessment on property valuations.

Even if the county tax rate were to be lowered due to higher valuations, some individual property owners face the prospect of higher tax bills because of the assessment increases on their property.

According to estimates the homeowner with a house valued at $35,000 on the open market had a net assessed valuation (after exemptions) of $8,750.

Taxes are paid on 10% of the assessed value of property, or one fourth its total value. In this case the value of $8,750 would total $875. (The average price of a home in Yorba Linda has been estimated at $68,000 in several quarters.)

The increase in assessed valuations will be a shot in the arm for school districts. When estimating funds to be realized from the taxes they are usually conservative. This large hike will give districts additional dollars.

For the Yorba Linda Elementary School District the increase was 22.9%, up $10,800,000 to a total of $58 million. Last year's figure, after a 13 per cent increase was $47.41 million.

The Placentia Unified School District will benefit from an increase of 15.2% or $49.26 million to bring the total up to $373.30 million. Last year the district valuation was $324.04 million.

The figures do not include valuations for public utilities which are handled by the State Board of Equalization.

Jacobs stated that most of the increase is due to inflation in existing property values rather than because of new construction. Valuations are based on market sales over an 18-month period.

Student Paints Mural

What does an artist do when faced with a 12-foot blank wall in a library? Tish Gilligan, recent eighth grade graduate, solved the problem by painting more shelves and books at Bernardo Yorba Junior High School.

The 14-year-old created the huge mural as a project in teacher Jack Gruber's art class.

"She began a week or so before school was out, but it took considerably longer than she had thought, so she spent the first part of her summer vacation painting in the library," explained Richard Vouga, assistant principal at Yorba.

The new shelves are limited to a selection of books, but contain such interesting items as a fishbowl, complete with occupants. The pictured books offer a reading selection ranging from The Bible to a diary. Her particular favorite is entitled "Gilligan's Island."

Tish is continuing her education and her art training at Esperanza High School this summer.

Apology to Council

Dear Sir:

On June 22 I attended the Yorba Linda City Council's "Town Hall" meeting. It lasted 3 hours 45 minutes. Since I have other commitments every Monday night, this was my first Council meeting.

During this meeting we were subjected to 1) what seemed to be a continuing pro and con argument about the merits of the Chamber of Commerce, 2) a frustrated ex-council member who had not attended the work sessions and wanted to comment on every budget item, 3) people with their special interest projects which they considered more important than the town chosen projects, and 4) two people who compared what they considered the short comings of Yorba Linda to the cities of Camarillo, Stanton, and Century City. The members of our city council took a lot of uncalled for abuse when they were not required to have the "Town Hall" sessions.

In the last Council election, Yorba Linda decided to remain a rural, non-industrial community. I dislike property taxes as much as anybody; but I realize that without bringing in industry, Yorba Linda residents must make up the needed money for our schools and our town. We elected our councilmen to manage our town within the guidelines that we, the electorate, dictated by our voting. The abuse they received at the above meeting was unnecessary and was seemingly from the losing minority.

With the revisions to SB 90, I hope that the city property tax is less than $1.00 per assessed $100. I was as upset as the residents present to oppose the tax when I first read of the tax.

I called my departed friend, George Machado, about the need for the tax. He stated that it had been apparent since 1972 that Yorba Linda would eventually need a city property tax. He agreed with the City Administrator and had run his own calculations.

Yes, there are ways around the tax increase for now; but many projects will have to be postponed and may cost us much more later. If the City Council believes it to be more cost effective, then I think we should

Ban on Bees Pending

"Earthworms don't fly and they're not poisonous" said a beleaguered Donald Todd as he implored the Planning Commission to outlaw the keeping of bees in the city.

The reference to earthworms was a recent commission decision designating the raising of earthworms as an agricultural use.

This was the only precedent on which to base a decision about bees.

Todd won his point when the commission recommended to the City Council that an urgency ordinance be adopted to ban the raising and keeping of bees. It was also stipulated that the matter be given further study with a view towards developing guidelines on the matter.

Todd had brought the subject to the attention of the council which referred it to the commission for "earliest possible consideration."

The Bastanchury Road resident had sent the city a letter telling of the keeping of bees in his neighborhood. He said he found it "impossible to work outside anywhere near the hives", that the insects swarmed about the house and that he didn't fill and couldn't use his swimming pool because of their proximity.

Todd called attention to the fact that he and many other persons are allergic to bee stings. He pointed to the recent death of a local resident from a sting and the hospitalization of others.

Monday, July 5

Ronald M. Thomason, 5042 Woodcrest, Yorba Linda, told police Monday that between 2 p.m. Sunday and 2 a.m. that day a burglar stole $645 worth of firearms and ammunition from his home. Included in the haul were an AR-15 rifle, a 12-gauge shotgun, and a .38-cal. revolver.

Sunday, July 4

A CB radio together with its antenna were stolen Saturday night from the car of Thomas E. Walsh, 5751 Rich Hill Way, Yorba Linda. Value of the loss was set at $237.

Walsh had left the car parked in his driveway overnight.

Thursday, July 1

A burglar Wednesday night last week stole a cashbox containing $20 from the city's new Parks and Recreation Building, 4701 Casa Loma, Yorba Linda.

back them 100%.

It would be easier for them to allow things to ride until severe damage was done by lacking drainage or our town was overrun with children who had nothing to do because their parents presently depend on the YMCA and the Park and Recreation programs to baby-sit for their children.

I think many people owe the members of the Council an apology for the abuse and criticism unduly aimed at them in the June 22 meeting.

Yours truly,

Editorial Opinion

'Town Hall' Meetings

BY JIM ARKISON

It was appropriate in this Bicentennial Year and so close to Independence Day that the Yorba Linda City Council saw fit to sponsor two "Town Hall" meetings in connection with the study of the budget and consideration of the recommendation to have a city property tax rate.

"Town Hall" meetings were the first form of government in action that this nation experienced in its formative years. The meetings gave the people the opportunity to have a voice in what course their elected or appointed leaders would follow.

Two hundred years removed from the birth of the nation the Town Hall meetings in Yorba Linda were undoubtedly an echo of those which set the tone and the pattern for the government which provides the leadership today.

One local council member, Irwin Fried, has said so publicly and the other members of the governing body probably agree with him although they have not spoken on the subject: "I think it is unfortunate that many more citizens did not avail themselves of the opportunity to attend and participate in the meetings," Fried declared.

Slightly less than 60 persons were at the first session and a few more than 60 attended the second meeting. Only a small percentage of those at both meetings participated and some of those were speakers on both occasions.

The speakers who criticized budget expenditures and opposed the imposition of a city property tax far outweighed those who agreed with the budget figures and favored the tax.

But although the numbers were few their voices were heard, their arguments accepted and their viewpoints respected as was evidenced by subsequent council action. In the final analysis, this is what the Town Hall meetings were all about.

The council deleted funds from the budget by delaying some major projects, bringing it into balance, affording what was deemed by staff as adequate numbers of dollars in reserve and postponing, for at least this fiscal year, the need for a city property tax.

So, "Town Hall" works. If it didn't Yorba Linda would be in trouble, as would government at the county, state and national levels.

Aside from the main subject, the Town Hall meetings afforded some the opportunity to attack against their pet peeves. It gave others the chance to politic on their own behalf.

Because of a belief that the Chamber of Commerce was involved in the last municipal election, anti-business forces launched an attack against the city's subsidy to the Chamber.

A former councilman, demanding that the present council take certain steps and actions that he did not espouse when he was a member of the governing body, all but announced his candidacy for the next local election.

A woman made her problem sound unique and won sympathy. However, when it appeared that her arguments had accomplished what she set out to have accomplished an explanation by a staff member put the problem in its proper perspective and her eloquence went for naught.

Another potential political force emerged as a tax rate opponent revealed the formation of a homeowners coalition which will evidently be highly visible in future political campaigns, even to the extent of sponsoring candidates.

The age old ploy of comparisons with other cities was used by both tax opponents and proponents.

The city staff presentation was well thought out, presented an accurate picture of the city as it developed, as it is now and what it will be like in the future.

Limited to figures and statistics it had to be explained. It was this explanation which bore the brunt of the attack.

The council was there to listen. For the most part it did. At points individual members felt compelled to reply to statements made by the speakers.

It may have been disappointing that a small percentage of the population participated in the meetings. But, the over-riding element is the fact that the meetings were held, the people spoke and the council reacted. That is what was intended and that was what happened. Yorba Linda is better for it.

Contract...

The mutually enjoyed in the development of educational philosophy and curriculum with the basis that now exists in board policies and procedures.

The Board has instructed its representatives to meet and negotiate in good faith and to continue the spirit of cooperation to the best possible interest of the children and teachers of the Placentia Unified School District, the statement concludes.

The management proposal recognizes PUEA as the exclusive bargaining representative for teachers, recognizing the right of unit members to "form, join and participate in employee organizations and the equal right...to refuse to form, join or participate in employee organizations."

For negotiating purposes, the proposed contract retains the salary schedule adopted last August, but grants a 7 per cent increase to cover raises for longevity and additional college course work taken by teachers and increased cost of fringe benefits, Dorn said.

The fringe benefit offer remains the same as that available to employees this year and includes Blue Cross health insurance, an annual physical examination and prescription drug coverage, fully paid insurance premiums for employees who retire after the age of 58, and a $10,000 life insurance policy.

Management's proposal sets the work day for teachers at eight hours, excluding lunch, and continues current district policies on leaves.

It also retains the rights of the district, through the board of trustees elected by the public, to "direct and control its operation" including rights to establish educational philosophy, insure the rights and educational opportunities of students, determine staffing patterns, maintain efficiency of district operation, determine curriculum, develop the budget, and "hire, assign, evaluate, promote, terminate and discipline employees."

Other items covered by the management package include rights of PUEA, grievances, class size, transfers, evaluation, safety and method of payroll deduction for PUEA dues.

Copies of the management proposal, along with that of PUEA, are available at all district schools and the district office, 1301 E. Orangethorpe Ave.

The public is invited to read the proposals and make their views known to trustees during a public hearing at the regular meeting of the board of education at 7:45 p.m. Monday, July 12.

Tynes School Started

Construction on the new John O. Tynes Elementary School in Placentia started Thursday with informal groundbreaking ceremonies. It is the first of two elementary schools the Placentia Unified School District will start building this summer. Target date for completion is September 1, 1977.

The Tynes school, located just east of the new Placentia Civic Center, will feature an orthopedically handicapped school which will have therapy facilities open to the community, according to Patrick Bowman, the district's director of planning and construction.

A contract to build the $2.6 million school was let to Nick Pokrajac Inc., a Baldwin Park firm, last week. Total estimated cost of the school, including site and furnishings, is approximately $3.4 million.

Student capacity for the new school, which will be built in a modified open classroom concept, is 701 for the kindergarten-through-sixth grade classes and 76 for the orthopedically handicapped facility. Davis-Duhaime Associates of Corona Del Mar is the architectural firm.

Square footage for the new school is 36,740 for the K-6 portion and 23,200 for the orthopedically handicapped section.

The school plan represents several years of work by the district's special education staff, headed by former director Charles Johannsen, who recently took a position with the State Department of Education.

The school conforms to the concepts of the new State Master Plan for Special Education in which handicapped students will be integrated with regular students during the school day.

District trustees named the school for the current superintendent who has worked with children in the district for 32 years and is an authority on special athletics programming.

The second new school planned for the district will be started next month and has been named Woodsboro Elementary. Completion is slated for June 1977.

by Jim Arkison

It was quite a day.

I had hoped that the Fourth of July in connection with the Bicentennial would be something special but I had no idea that it would be as impressive as it turned out to be.

We have television to thank for the enjoyment of the occasion. There is no other way that we could have shared in what was happening across the nation without the miracle of this marvelous invention.

When introduced and regarded as a novelty, television was an astounding luxury. Then when it became commonplace we found it easy to level criticism at it. But, had it only been activated for this one occasion, to record the celebration of the Bicentennial, it would have been well worth it.

The industry did itself proud in spanning the nation and focusing on the events in not only the major cities but in the small towns and hamlets.

Doug Sieker, who also won the title in music. Others recognized for outstanding improvement were Craig Riley and Mike Ostgaard in art and John Francis in Spanish.
